WISCONSIN

NUMBER OF INHABITANTS

Population of the State.—The Territory of Wisconsin, including the area now constituting the States of Wisconsin, Iowa, Minnesota, and parts of North and South Dakota, was organized in 1836 from part of Michigan Territory. In 1838 that part of Wisconsin Territory situated west of the Mississippi River and a line drawn from its source to the Canadian boundary was organized as the Territory of Iowa. In 1848, Wisconsin, with boundaries as at present, was admitted to the Union as the thirtieth State.

The population of Wisconsin on April 1, 1940, according to the Sixteenth Census, was 3,137,587, which represents an increase of 198,581, or 6.8 percent, as compared with the population on April 1, 1930. The total land area of the State, as shown in table 3, is 54,715 square miles. The average number of inhabitants per square mile in 1940 was 57.3, as compared with 53.7 in 1930.

Table 1 shows the population of Wisconsin from 1840, the year in which the Territory of Wisconsin was first separately enumerated, to 1940, together with the increase during each decade. The urban and rural population of the State at each census is presented in this table and is also shown graphically in the accompanying chart. The urban population of Wisconsin consists of those persons living in incorporated places of 2,500 or more, the remainder of the population being classified as rural. The urban and rural areas are not necessarily constant from one census to the next, since new places are added to the urban list from time to time as they attain a population of 2,500 or more. Places are likewise taken off the urban list when, through decline in population, they fall below this limit. For example, Columbus qualified as urban in 1910 and 1930 but not in 1920.

URBAN AND RURAL POPULATION OF WISCONSIN: 1840 TO 1940

Geographic subdivisions.—In tables 2 to 5 the population of Wisconsin is shown by counties, cities, towns, and villages, with some comparative figures from previous censuses. Table 6 gives the population of cities by wards. Data for the metropolitan districts are presented in tables 7, 7-A, and 7-B, and for the census tracts of Milwaukee in table 8.

Incorporated places of 10,000 or more.—There are 33 incorporated places in the State that had a population of 10,000 or more in 1940. Table 2 shows the population of these incorporated places at each census for which figures are available, together with the increase or decrease during each decade. Milwaukee, the largest city, had a population in 1940 of 587,472; and Madison, the capital of the State, had a population of 67,447.

Counties.—Table 3 shows the population of the 71 counties of Wisconsin from 1920 to 1940, together with the land area of each county and its population per square mile in 1940. The land areas given here are the result of new measurements recently compiled and differ somewhat from those published in earlier census reports.

Of the 69 counties whose boundaries remained unchanged since 1930, 63 increased in population between 1930 and 1940, and 6 decreased. Part of Monroe County was annexed to Vernon County in 1939. This table also presents the urban and rural population of each county for 1940 and 1930.

Minor civil divisions.—To the primary political divisions into which the counties are subdivided the Census Bureau applies the general term "minor civil divisions." The primary divisions of the counties in Wisconsin are the towns, cities, and villages. (The Menomonee Indian Reservation, in Oconto and Shawano Counties, is also classified as a primary division.) There are 150 cities and 363 villages. There are no secondary divisions.

Table 4 shows the population of each county by cities, towns, and villages (and the one reservation) for the last three censuses. Where a city or village is located partly in one county and partly in another, the part in a given county is presented in the regular way as a primary division of that county, but, to make the presentation complete, the population is also shown, in italics, for the part outside that county and for the city or village as a whole.

Table with 12 columns for minor civil divisions and years 1940, 1930, and 1920. It is organized by county: Columbia, Crawford, Dane, Dodge, and Dunn. Each county section lists its constituent towns and villages with their respective populations for each year.

1 COLUMBIA.—Name of Wisconsin Dells city changed from Kilbourn in 1931. 2 CRAWFORD.—Mount Sterling village incorporated from part of Utica town in 1936. 3 DANE.—County total for 1920 is exclusive of population (66) of part of Belleville village, returned incorrectly in 1920 as in Green County. Part of Madison town annexed to Madison city in 1931, and parts of Madison city annexed to Madison town in 1932 and 1938. Monona village incorporated from part of Blooming Grove town in 1938. Maple Bluff village incorporated as Lakewood Bluff village from part of Madison town in 1930; name changed in 1931. 4 DODGE.—Part of Chester town annexed to Waupun city in 1939. Fox Lake village incorporated as a city since 1930. 5 DUNN.—County total for 1920 includes population (177) of Weston village, annexed to Weston town in 1920.

NOTE.—Other places of more than 5,000 (Shorewood, West Milwaukee, and Whitefish Bay villages) have no wards.

Metropolitan districts.—Metropolitan districts have been set up for use in the 1940 Census of Population in connection with each city of 50,000 or more, two or more such cities sometimes being in one district. The general plan is to include in the district, in addition to the central city or cities, all adjacent and contiguous minor civil divisions having a population of 150 or more per square mile. In some metropolitan districts, a few less densely populated contiguous divisions are included on the basis of special qualifications. A metropolitan district is thus not a political unit but rather an area including all the thickly settled territory in and around a city or group of cities. It tends to be a more or less integrated area with common economic, social, and, often, administrative interests. The following tables give data for the three metropolitan districts with the main central city in Wisconsin. One of the central cities of the Duluth-Superior metropolitan district is also situated in Wisconsin; data for this district are presented in the bulletin for Minnesota.

Table 7 shows the population of the Madison metropolitan district and its constituent political units in 1940. This district was defined for the first time in 1940. For comparison the 1930 population of the units comprising the present district is also shown, together with the increase between 1930 and 1940. In 1940 the Madison metropolitan district had 78,349 inhabitants, whereas in 1930 the same area had a population of 64,350.

TABLE 7.—POPULATION OF THE MADISON METROPOLITAN DISTRICT: 1940 AND 1930

[This area was not defined as a metropolitan district in 1930; the figures shown in the second column represent the 1930 population of the specified places as defined in 1930.]

² Maple Bluff village incorporated in 1930 as Lakewood Bluff village from part of Madison town; name changed in 1931.

⁴ Part annexed to Madison city in 1931, and parts of Madison city annexed in 1932 and 1938; part taken to form Lakewood Bluff village in 1930.

Table 7-A shows the population of the Milwaukee metropolitan district and its constituent political units in 1940 and 1930, together with the increase or decrease during the decade. In 1940 the Milwaukee metropolitan district had 790,336 inhabitants, whereas in 1930 the district as then constituted had a population of 743,414. That part of Greendale village that was incorporated from Franklin town, and that part of Waukesha town that was annexed to Waukesha city were included in the metropolitan district in 1940 for the first time. The population of these new areas is not obtainable for either 1940 or 1930.

Table 7-B shows the population of the Racine-Kenosha metropolitan district and its constituent political units in 1940 and 1930, together with the increase or decrease during the decade. In 1940 the Racine-Kenosha metropolitan district had 135,075 inhabitants, whereas in 1930 the district had a population of 133,463. The metropolitan district in 1940 had exactly the same area as in 1930.

Census tracts.—Census tracts are small areas into which certain large cities are subdivided through cooperation with a local committee in each case for statistical and local administrative purposes. The tracts are permanently established, so that comparisons may be made from census to census; they are laid out with a view to approximate uniformity in population and with some regard for uniformity in area; and each is designed to include an area fairly homogeneous in population characteristics. In table 8 the 1940 population of Milwaukee is shown by census tracts. Since these tracts were not established until after 1930, there are no comparative figures for earlier censuses. The census tracts for Milwaukee are shown on the accompanying map.

WYOMING
MINOR CIVIL DIVISIONS—ELECTION DISTRICTS

WYOMING

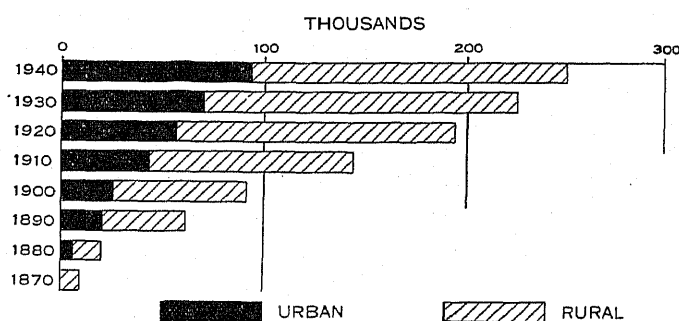

NUMBER OF INHABITANTS

Population of the State.—Wyoming was organized as a Territory in 1868 and was admitted to the Union as the forty-fourth State in 1890. Its population on April 1, 1940, according to the Sixteenth Census, was 250,742, which represents an increase of 25,177, or 11.2 percent, as compared with the population on April 1, 1930. The total land area of the State, as shown in table 3, is 97,506 square miles. The average number of inhabitants per square mile in 1940 was 2.6, as compared with 2.3 in 1930.

Table 1 shows the population of Wyoming from 1870, the year in which its area was first separately enumerated, to 1940, together with the increase during each decade. The urban and rural population of the State at each census is presented in this table and is also shown graphically in the accompanying chart. The urban population of Wyoming consists of all persons living in incorporated places of 2,500 or more, the remainder of the population being classified as rural. The urban and rural areas are not necessarily constant from one census to the next, since new places are added to the urban list from time to time as they attain a population of 2,500 or more; for example, Cody was classified as urban in 1940 for the first time. Places are likewise taken off the urban list when, through decline in population, they fall below this limit.

URBAN AND RURAL POPULATION OF WYOMING: 1870 TO 1940

Geographic subdivisions.—In tables 2 to 5 the population of Wyoming is shown by counties, election districts, cities, and towns, with some comparative figures from previous censuses. Table 6 gives the population of cities by wards.

Cities of 10,000 or more.—There are four cities in the State that had a population of 10,000 or more in 1940. Table 2 shows for these cities the population at each census for which figures are available, together with the increase or decrease during each decade. Cheyenne, the capital and largest city in the State, had a population in 1940 of 22,474. The other three cities in this size group, in order of population, are Casper, Laramie, and Sheridan. Laramie and Sheridan are included in this size group for the first time.

Counties.—Table 3 shows the population of the 23 counties of Wyoming from 1920 to 1940, together with the land area of each county and its population per square mile in 1940. The land areas given here are the result of new measurements recently compiled and differ somewhat from those published in earlier census reports. Seventeen of these counties increased in population between 1930 and 1940, and six decreased. No new counties have been organized, and there have been no changes in county boundaries since the census of 1930. Yellowstone National Park, the greater part of which is located in this State, is independent of any county organization. This table also presents the urban and rural population of each county for 1940 and 1930.

⁴ Organized from parts of Fremont and Lincoln Counties in 1923.
⁵ Organized from part of Lincoln County in 1923.
⁶ Yellowstone National Park geographically located within limits of Idaho, Montana, and Wyoming. Total population: 459 in 1940, 253 in 1930, and 165 in 1920; reported in 1920 and prior years as in Wyoming only. Part annexed to Park County, and part of Park County annexed, in 1929.

Minor civil divisions.—To the primary political divisions into which counties are subdivided the Census Bureau applies the general term "minor civil divisions." In Wyoming the primary divisions of the counties are called election districts. The incorporated cities and towns form secondary subdivisions of the minor civil divisions in which they are located. There are 8 cities and 80 towns. Ordinarily, each of these secondary divisions, or incorporated places, forms a part of some election district (or districts).

Table 4 shows the population of each county by election districts, cities, and towns for the last three censuses. The population of the cities and towns is shown in italics under the population of the primary divisions in which the places are respectively located. Where an incorporated place occupies two or more districts or parts of districts, the total population of the place is given in connection with the presentation for the first district. The population of the cities that comprise several entire districts is presented in roman type, followed by the district population in italic type.

TABLE 4.—POPULATION OF COUNTIES BY MINOR CIVIL DIVISIONS: 1920 TO 1940

[The "districts" shown in the table are election districts. Counties showing few comparative figures have been organized at some time between the censuses, or have been redistricted. For changes in boundaries, etc., between 1930 and 1940, see footnotes; for those between 1920 and 1930, see Reports of the Fifteenth Census (1930), vol. I, pp. 1211-1215]
