

Miss Harriet Strehlow, formerly a teacher in the Binford school is to be married when her present term of school in Casselton expires, according to word received from her by friends in Binford. Miss Strehlow has many friends here who are pleased to join in extending congratulations on her engagement. Monday evening, at Casselton, she was one of two honor guests at a party when announcement of the engagement was made. The Fargo Forum, of Tuesday evening, contained the following account of the party: "Announcements of the engagement of Miss Harriet Strehlow, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. F. Strehlow of Casselton, and Sherman Pinkham, of Pulsko, Wash., formerly of Fargo; and Miss Mabel Stewart of Grand Forks, a teacher in the Casselton high school, and Clay D. Smith, of Casselton, were the features of a party given by Mrs. John Ross, Jr., of Fargo at the home of Mrs. A. Burnam of Casselton last evening. Novel methods were used to announce the tidings, which came as a surprise to the guests. Miss Strehlow, who has grown to womanhood in Casselton, is the principal of the Southside school in Casselton. Mr. Pinkham has made his home in Fargo until a few months ago and has been connected with the First National bank. He is now engaged in the banking business at Pulsko, Wash."
