Ouch! That ball game at McHenry last Sunday wasn't a ball game, speaking, of course, from a Binford point of view. We feel in a reminiscent mood when it is referred to, 'cause it seems like so long ago. It was a long time ago—since Binford (or at least, some of its players) played that kind of baseball. Perhaps it will be just as well to try to forget about it completely—begging McHenry's permission. Suffice to say, the victor's—guess who—got 11 runs and the side that lost got only 4. Strange, isn't it? The outlandish feature of the game was two palpable muffs by Binford's "cracked" centerfielder.
