

Ringlee's store has bedecked herself out in a new raiment of bright spring colors. In response to printed invitations sent out by this firm, many people from town and surrounding country gathered there Monday evening to attend their first annual spring opening. New goods are prominently displayed about the store to attract the eye of the buying public. Coffee and Sunshine cookies are served every afternoon this week, while a phonograph, built by Mr. Moen, added its musical strains to that of the hustle and bustle of a busy store. The window displays are especially attractive. The panels in the background are painted in light shades, and decorated with artificial roses in red and white, banked with ferns and other bright green foliage. Hanging baskets with dainty-colored streamers, and a bird perched here and there, produce a most pleasing and spring-like appearance.

O. D. Press referred to Coopers-