

hear what he has to say.

The interior of Ringlee's store has been remodeled and rearranged, which gives them more space and allows a better display of their merchandise. The front half of the north room has been partitioned off and will be used exclusively for gents' furnishings. Some of the shelving in the dry goods department has been removed which permits a proper display of these goods. Scenic paintings make a splendid background effect above the shelves and artistic advertising placards add a finishing touch. Much of this is the handiwork of O. T. Moen, the new clerk at Ringlee's. Mr. Moen has had many years of experience in the general merchandise business and his addition to the Ringlee force is a distinct asset to them.
