

A genuine old fashioned kind of a time was enjoyed by those who attended the annual dance and supper given by the local lodge of Odd Fellows and their wives, last Friday evening in the opera house. An arrangement of multi-colored streamers were used as a decoration for the center of the ball room, while the stage was beautified by the display of the national emblem. Supper was served in the lodge rooms upstairs, by the ladies. This room also was artistically decorated with streamers representing the Rebe-kah colors of pink and green. Large flags adorned the walls at intervals, with Gen. Pershing's picture holding a prominent position at the front of the room. Hearts, cupids, and other appointments appropriate to the Valentine season were carried out in the table decorations, interspersed with quantities of pink carnations and ferns. Sixteen young ladies, gowned in white and wearing red ties, presided over the serving, while the beautiful strains of a victrola were enjoyed during the feasting hour. The committee in charge of the entertainment worked hard to make this an enjoyable event for both young and old, and this affair goes down as one of much pleasure to those fortunate enough to be present.
