

space to it.

Beginning Monday morning and continuing until Tuesday morning this section witnessed the greatest downpour of rain since the big flood that made Noah famous. For a period of twentyfour hours the downpour continued, with only brief intervals of short duration, only to start again with added vigor. At noon Monday and again in the afternoon the clouds were so thick and close, causing such darkness that for almost any kind of indoor work it was necessary to turn on the light and it was observed that many of the business places were lighted up during those periods. The electrical disturbances caused considerable
