

Jack Kirk arrived here yesterday from Duluth, where he had been employed during the winter.

Louis Tweed was in from his farm north of town, Monday, and visited at the home of W. G. Tweed and family.

The local lodge of Odd Fellows went to Sutton Tuesday where they conferred the four degrees upon a number of candidates. The session lasted all night. Those who went over speak very highly of the treatment accorded them by the Sutton brethren.

Some one has been setting out poison on the Matt Rorvig and S. N. Koloen farms, and dogs owned by these gentlemen have died as a result. Mr. Rorvig fears that some of his live stock might become poisoned and should this occur he will prosecute to the full extent of the law. It behooves the party who placed the poison to remove it at once.

Anton Miller figured in two big real estate transactions last week. He purchased the farm known as the Torgerson place, 320 acres, from the Binford Realty Co. for a consideration of $16,000, or $50 per acre. Nels Nordnes will operate the farm. Later he sold a half section, known as the Roach farm, to his brother, P. C. Miller, for $45 an acre, which place will be worked by the latter's son.

"Lucky Gulch" the western play presented by Binford home talent last Friday evening was a splendid success in every way. The weather was perfect and the folks from the country and neighboring towns were well-represented. The people who participated in the play gave a very creditable account of themselves, and showed the result of hard and earnest effort. Each member in the cast was well fitted for his or her role and all displayed an easiness of manner so often lacking in a home talent production. A specialty was introduced between the first and second acts that was the best ever put on in Binford. With all lights turned out in the hall, five young ladies sang the "Glow Worm." Each singer held a tiny flashlight, which glowed in the darkness as they sang. It made such a hit with the audience that calls for a second performance were so many that the "glimmer" song was repeated later in the evening, again heartily applauded. The other specialties were a popular song by members of the play, and a Japanese song by three little girls in costume, which were both good and were well received. The success of these entertainments is made possible only by the sympathetic and wholehearted co-operation on the part of the players, the audience and those who help in various other ways to put these affairs on. At the close of the last act the hall was cleared and dancing indulged in until a late hour. The receipts from the show amounted to $151.95, and the sale of dance tickets brought $35.00.
