

they can get it erected.

An opportunity is offered local people to beat the high cost of living. The government is selling millions of pounds of army supplies to the people through the postoffice department and the local postoffice has been allotted its share of these supplies, orders for which will be taken until the allotment is exhausted. Food stuffs offered consist of bacon, beef, vegetables, spices, flour, jam and many other articles. Postmaster Knapp has complete instructions for ordering these foods together with the necessary blanks. Those who would like to take a swat at old man H. C. L. should call at the postoffice and learn how they may order this food.