

The Greenland and Rice families have been discharged from quarantine for scarlet fever, after a confinement to their homes for about a month.