

The government has asked that newspapers cut down the number of papers mailed out as much as possible and to restrict their expenditures as much as possible. Just now the government is not encouraging the establishment of newspapers and is urging every effort on the part of publishers to conserve the paper supply as well as labor used in the publishing of newspapers. Uncle Sam says "save" to everyone.

New rules for the guidance of