

Mr. and Mrs. Anton Larson figured in a bad runaway last Thursday afternoon. They were coming to town and while driving down a hill, west of town, the tongue of the buggy fell down, frightening the horses. Mr. Larson fell out and was dragged some distance, receiving several bruises about the body. Mrs. Larson threw her little girl out of the buggy when the horses became unmanageable, and she was unhurt, but Mrs. Larson remained until thrown out when the buggy was wrecked. Her face was badly hurt, and it was thought for a time that her hip was broken. She was taken to Grigsby's home, and they brought her to town to the doctor. He sent her to Fargo that afternoon on the train. Mr. Larson stated when he returned Saturday, from Fargo, that no bones were broken, but her hip was dislocated, and she will remain in the hospital for two weeks. Her many friends are glad her injuries were no worse and hope for her a speedy recovery.
