

Forum Forum: Lying in his little white cot at the St. Luke's hospital pain racking his thin body and with nothing to do but to stare out of the window or into the hall, where the white garbed nurses are padding back and forth, Mansfield Lehr of McHenry, N. D., accidentally shot with a .22 rifle in the hands of his brother, is slowly getting well again. Mansfield who is only 5 or 6 years old, was a member of a group of small boys playing near the McHenry slaughter house. One of the boys had a rifle and in shooting at a galvanized iron tank, accidentally hit the little fellow, the bullet passing through his abdomen. Although he was not expected to live, "Manny," as he is called by his playmates was rushed to Fargo, where an operation was performed. Now he is getting better, and although his mother is with him, "Manny" is kind of lonesome for all the fellows back home.
