ed.

M. D. Lieninger returned Monday from St. Paul, where he had disposed of a shipment of stock. On his return, Mr. Lieninger says that while his train was stopping at Howard Lake, a freight train bumped into them in a head-on collision, causing the death of one of the engineers, and shaking up the passengers more or less. The two trains were badly wrecked. Mr. Lieninger escaped uninjured.