

McHenry Tribune: Postmaster Cannon, aside from numerous other capabilities, is at least a humorist. While most of the rest of the population was on its knees Wednesday awaiting the downfall of mankind according to the dire predictions of modern prophets, Cannon posted what was purported to be wireless from Hades as follows "12-17-19—On account of the shortage of fuel the end of the world is postponed until a later date." The message was unsigned, and its origin while not doubtful, may or may not be authoritative. However, as Cannon is the only man in town claiming to have had wireless connection with the lower regions, the message was accepted for what it was worth.
