

Nestos Spoke in Binford

Hon. R. A. Nestos, of Minot, spoke in the Binford opera house, last Thursday afternoon, between trains. The noon train came in very late so the time was short, but the speaker talked fast and made the most of the situation.

Mr. Nestos reports a splendid attendance at Esmond, Maddock and Oberon, where he spoke to crowded houses. Unusual interest, he states, is being shown by the voters on the discussion of the political issues of this campaign. His audiences were largely farmers who are giving close attention to the questions that have to do with the liberties of the people and the future of the state. Mr. Nestos, who was a prominent candidate for governor in the recent anti-Socialist Republican convention at Minot has thrown his energies wholeheartedly into the campaign to elect the entire Republican ticket headed by his recent rival, William Langer. He is the stuff of which true patriots are made. He maintains that no effort should be spared to redeem the state from its present wasteful management and expresses his convictions and belief that the farmers are fast coming to the realization of the socialistic yoke that was being foisted upon North Dakota by a gang of socialists and visionaries.
