
Of Interest to Teachers.

The Fargo Branch of the United States Employment Service reports a decided shortage of qualified school teachers. At present the Fargo office is endeavoring to find three hundred qualified teachers for one room rural schools and for consolidated schools. Several counties are calling for principals in consolidated and small town schools where one or two years high school work is carried.

The United States Employment Service makes no charge for services rendered and should be popular with the teachers.
