

Draft Men Sent Home.

Thirty-three North Dakota men who have been in training at Camp Dodge for some time have been recommended for discharge from military service on account of physical deficiency.

These men will be given "certificates of physical deficiency," and are not permanently discharged from the service. They are required to report to their local board when the causes for which they have been discharged no longer exist.

The government will pay the expenses of these men to the towns from which they were inducted and wages while they have been in camp.

In the list of men who have been discharged appears the name of Ole J. Barclay, of Mose.
