

Dickinson, Finley Editor, Arrested

D. W. Dickinson, editor of the Steele County Observer, a weekly newspaper published at Finley, who has led the fight on Nonpartisan league propaganda in Steele county, was arrested, charged with criminal libel, and at a preliminary hearing was bound over in $500 bonds to the June term of the Steele county district court. He was permitted to sign his own bond.

The complaining witness is J. M. Stordahl, a farmer living near Finley, who has been very active in the interests of the Nonpartisan league. Stordahl, the son of M. N. Stordahl, whom the league is grooming as a candidate for county judge, alleged that Mr. Dickinson wilfully damaged his reputation in a story recently published.
