

Cooperstown, N. D.

C. E. Wrightson arrived here last week and has taken charge of the electric light plant. His family will move to Binford some time next month. The name of the new company is the Binford Light & Power Co. and will be incorporated under that title. Mr. Wrightson informed The Times that several improvements are contemplated which will give the patrons much better service. Among them will be the installation of a small unit to take the place of the batteries, which have about outlived their usefulness. This unit will carry the load during the day and will permit the use of electric current for washing and ironing any time during the week. Another large unit may also be installed, providing sufficient contracts can be secured for current for power purposes. Mr. Wrightson expressed favorable impressions of his business venture in Binford. We extend to him the hand of goodfellowship and trust that his confidence in our little city will not be shaken.
