

C. E. Wrightson met with what might have been a fatal accident last Thursday night while attending to the engine at the light plant. The lights were going out, and while the engine was still running, he attempted to crawl through between the main drive belt to get behind the engine, when he was caught in the belt and flung against the wall very forcibly. His head was struck rendering him speechless for over two days. Before losing consciousness he managed to crawl to the central office to summon the doctor, who helped him to his room. On Sunday he regained his speech and is now feeling none the worse for his accident.

Miss Marie Loberg, who has enjoyed a two week's vacation spent at her home at Delamere, returned yesterday and resumed her work at the First National bank.
