H. A. Bayard, who purchased the O. J. Hanson farm northwest of town, last fall, was a caller at The Times office last Thursday. Mr. Bayard is interested in the potato campaign launched by the Binford Booster club and believes that our farmers should engage in the potato industry more extensively. He has had his "fill" of exclusive small grain farming in the Red River valley and has concluded to adopt a different system. He will raise about 30 acres of potatoes in addition to corn and sweet clover. Only enough of his land to raise feed for his stock will be put into small grains.
