

tures were truly interesting and instructive. Mrs. Abt is a splendid speaker and hits straight from the shoulder. The musical end of the programs averaged just fair. Mr. Kingdon as a vocal soloist, was good, but the pleasing effect of his solos was offset by the cheap vaudeville numbers given as encores, and as a saxophonist he was far from being an artist. The two young ladies played their pieces well. Another thing which left a bad taste in the mouth was the price charged for the dance. Most of our people understood when announcement of the dance was made, that the entire proceeds was to be given to the Near East Relief fund. No charge was made for the hall and when the musicians asked $15.00 for less than two hours playing, leaving only $3 for the purpose for which it was given, caused resentful feeling on the part of the dancers and others who contributed.
