

The postoffice is now in its new quarters in The Times building. Considerable work and planning was entailed in placing the equipment to the best advantage, and although some of the printing equipment is necessarily cramped for space yet we will soon get accustomed to our new surroundings.