

turning to his home Tuesday.

The worst blizzard experienced so far this winter is raging with great fury as this is written—last evening. It commenced Tuesday afternoon and continued through the night and yesterday, with no signs of any cessation. Train service on the branch was not attempted yesterday, and it is probable that unless the storm abates very soon, it will be several days before railroad traffic can be restored.