

the first part of next week.

Erick Fors, who is employed on the Matt Rorvig farm, received a bad cut in the head, last Friday, when he tried to stop a runaway. He, with Ernest Rorvig, drove a team of young mares out to the field to haul in some corn from the shocks. While the boys were on the ground loading up, the horses started away. In an effort to stop them, Mr. Fors climbed into the rack, but fell off again, cutting his head quite badly. The team ran home, and Mr. Fors was taken into town where Dr. Truscott dressed the wound. It was necessary to take six stitches.