

Griggs County Hunters Will Exterminate the Crow Next Sunday

Great plans are being made for crow extermination in Griggs county next Sunday.

According to the plans hunters in each part of the county are being organized into companies to wage war upon the crow, and by nightfall the number is certain to be diminished by the thousands.

Binford hunters have secured permission from State Game Warden Brown to hunt on the game refuge at Red Willow. The woods and fields at Red Willow are infested with crows at certain seasons and much damage is done to growing crops, besides the destruction of other birds and their eggs. The crow is probbly the worst of the carnivorous birds and because of the large number they have become a menace to be reckoned with.

J. J. Herlick and Aug. Evers have been selected to head the Binford hunters and those who intend to participate in the Sunday shoot may report to them. The Boy Scouts are also requested to accompany the hunters. They will be assigned to climbing trees to destroy the crow's nests and eggs. This is usually a pleasant occupation for boys anyway, and their part will probably do more to exterminate the crow than that of their older brothers.

Join the bunch Sunday.
