

Two members connected with the highway commission were viewing the road built last summer to the Nelson county line. Some parts of the road will have to be repaired before it is accepted, according to information given The Times.