

this date in mind.

Fire of unknown origin was discovered shortly after midnight last Thursday morning which destroyed the McHenry Feed and Grist Mill at McHenry. There was a heavy wind blowing and by the time the alarm was given the greater part of the building was ablaze, the wind fanning the flames into a roaring heap in a few minutes and all chance of saving the mill was hopeless, so efforts were directed towards holding the flames in check and saving the George Schretenthaler residence that was about four feet from the south wall of the mill.

First Bellows opening about sixty