

L. P. Larson and Osmund Tjelweet returned on Monday from their deer hunting expedition along the Missouri river, near Bismarck. Fred Rathke, who also was in the party, remained for a few days longer. Many other hunters had preceded them in to that section with the result that the proverbial "wilder than a deer" was an actual reality. At any rate they killed one buck, and had their photograph taken with it to prove it to their friends. They had the pleasure of seeing the noted French general Foch, while in Bismarck, and to witness the great demonstration given in his honor.
