

That the Red Willow Lake Park Association will do things at the lake this season is proven by the notice for bids for the pavilion advertised in this issue of The Times. Bids are called for May 20. The annual meeting of the association is to be held at that time and it is expected that steps will be taken at once to get the building under construction. Despite the shortage of money, the association is doing everything in its power to get the lake project under way. They feel that the pavilion is one of the big things in the making of the resort and will spend every effort to get it completed. Stockholders can do much to lighten this burden by the payment of the first installment on their subscription. Unless that is done, it may be necessary to limit the construction of the building to the foundation and floor. The new location of the baseball grounds requires considerable road making, and this work will be commenced at once. The Times suggests that a day be set aside by the association when everyone interested be called upon to devote their time to improvements at the lake. It's a quick and inexpensive way of getting work done and much can be accomplished by this method.
