

near nose, yesterday, to recuperate.

Leavenworth (Wash.) Echo: F. A. Sinclair was at the station Monday afternoon when No. 4 went east and had the good fortune to meet an old friend and fellow ball player, Hugh McDaniels, of the days when Fred was considerable younger than he now is. Mr. and Mrs. McDaniels had been to Seattle for the winter and were returning to their home at Medicine Hat, Alberta. They were formerly residents of Cooperstown, N. D., and some twenty odd years ago when Mr. Sinclair played first base on the Cooperstown team, Hugh was the star pitcher of the team, and it was a team known far and wide for the trouncing it gave to most of the teams who crossed bats with them.
