

Sutton was again the scene of commotion Saturday night on account of the second visit by Kirby, he of Northwood fame. It had been noised about before that he was coming, consequently the news spread like wildfire in all directions. People were so anxious to be painted that they began arriving as early as six o'clock Saturday morning and kept coming until by night the town looked like a street carnival, a prize fight or a world series ball game was about to be staged. The hall was opened up for the man's use, and the mob flocked at his heels until the building was filled almost to suffocation.

There were many curiosity seekers and they, with those who hoped to be freed from all their ailments, formed a compact circle around the "healer" that one was reminded of a sideshow performance at a circus. Not all who desired to be painted had their wishes gratified, as Kirby ran out of paint long before he was through. Had the supply held out he would doubtless have been painting yet. —Sutton Reporter.

Now is the best time to subscribe for the Ladies Home Journal and Saturday Evening Post, thereby preparing for the long winter evenings by supplying yourself with the best