

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Grigsby, Mrs. J. R. Truscott and two sons, Robert and Donald, started out by car Sunday morning for St. Paul and Wisconsin. When four miles from Fargo they figured in an accident which delayed some days. While passing several cars on a graded road, they drove within two feet or so from the edge, and it being soft there, the car slid out and tipped over. Robert had his arm broken at the wrist, and Donald escaped with a bruised knee. Mrs. Truscott was badly shaken up and bruised considerably. Mr. and Mrs. Grigsby received some scratches and bruises, but luckily none of them seriously hurt. Mrs. Truscott and Robert were taken in to a Fargo hospital, where Robert's broken wrist was set. The car suffered a smashed top and windshield, and a broken wheel. In a letter to Mrs. M. Grigsby Tuesday, they wrote that they were having the car repaired and would continue on their journey east that day. Dr. Truscott autoed to Fargo Sunday evening to visit his family.
