

S. P. Lesleyoung, a representative of a Chicago grocery house, is about the most persistent canyasser that Barnes county has had to deal with for some time. Last Wednesday he was up before Judge Clark for selling adulterated food and was fined $25 and costs. The following Saturday he was up on two more counts and fined $75 and costs in both cases. He paid one fine and appealed to the district court on the other charge. Prof. Ladd was the prosecuting witness in all cases, and is deserving of considerable credit for his efforts in behalf of the pure food law.—Valley City Alliance.
