A Fargo Boy Goes to Bismarck With Warden Boucher of the State Pen

Harry Miller, who has been taking a course in shorthand and typewriting with Professor Watkins of the Dakota Business College, has secured the position as bookkeeper and stenographer for the N. D. State Penitentiary and left with Warden Boucher for Bismarck this afternoon.

Harry's friends are joshing him about "getting what he deserves" and Professor Watkins is being "congratulated upon his success in getting boys into the pen. Watkins says, however, that he considers he did extraordinarily well to get 221 into positions last year, only getting one into the prison.—Fargo Forum.
