

BAND PROSPECTS LOOKING BRIGHT

Almost an Assured Fact That Binford Will Have Band For Next Summer.

Since the story in the Times of two weeks ago, there has been a great deal of activity among the boys to resurrect the band. The prospects, right now could not look brighter.

After a period of two years of listlessness the members have taken on new life, and unless all signs fail, Binford will be up in the musical world with the rest of them. There is an excellent array of musical talent here and it is a wonder that the organization was not kept up.

The band will start out with a membership of 16 or 18 pieces—all of them with more or less experience in band work.

Director Brodshaug has advised the Times to call a meeting. Acting on that authority, say we have a meeting next Sunday at the opera house.
