

about this happy condition.

In its last issue the Times contained an article touching on the blockaded condition of our railroad and the efforts of the trainmen to open the road, and it seems that the article caused considerable of a flurry among some of the men. The paper was not printed until Saturday owing to our ready prints not getting here until Friday night, but as soon as we had published we put the Times in immediate circulation and it was not many hours before the crew knew all about it. As a result, Engineer Ellison of mogul No. 131 paid us a personal visit in the evening and asked for a copy of the paper. We granted the request and he accepted it with great courtesy, whereupon he remarked we evidently thought they were not trying very hard to open up the road, and told us that we ought to take a ride into a snow bank and see how it goes. Well we
