

Torger Rogne returned from Fargo Monday, where he underwent an operation for appendicitis. The operation was successful and he feels fine, with the exception that he is little weak. As soon as he regains his strength he will go out to his claim in Dunn county, to prepare for spring work, build a shack and make other improvements. His siege of sickness set him back about a month, so he figures he will have a hard time to get a crop in.