

Ray West, the tailor, has leased the back rooms of the building next door to Shaw's restaurant, and has decided to remain here permanently. Mr. West is a first class tailor, and has been enjoying a brisk business during his short stay here. An up-to-date tailoring establishment is a valuable acquisition to a town, and his decision to take up his residence here will meet with general approval.