

The Binford Farmers' club held a very interesting session yesterday afternoon, and the attendance proved that the club had taken on new life, and bids fair to be of some good to the community. A subject which caused much discussion was that of diversified farming, and the consensus of opinion seems to have been that this method of farming would have to be adopted very soon, and it is very probable that a majority of the farmers will go into stock in one form or other this coming summer. Many good suggestions were made as to the proper course to pursue in that respect, and one way which seemed to have the approval of all was in breeding up the stock they already have instead of investing a lot of money in registered stock. Another feature which will prove of interest was the addition of a question box. Members of the club will drop their questions into this box and at each meeting these questions will be threshed out. The club will hold their regular meetings on the first Wednesday of each month and it is hoped that the farmers will attend each one of these. Let the good work go on.
