

An orchestra has been organized in Binford and the boys are putting in all their spare moments in rehearsals—and considering the time they have been at it, they are making remarkable progress. The organization consists of Carl Grove and John Norman, violins; Eimer Krogfos, clarinet; Arvid Norstrum, cornet; Swen Westerdahl, trombone; Wylie Keiffer, piano; and Arthur Anderson, drums. In a short time Binford will have as good an orchestra as can be found along the branch, and will then be open for engagements.