F. C. Boeckman, who purchased the opera house a couple of weeks ago, will move to town in a few weeks. Mr. Boeckman's original plan was to live on the farm for another year, and have someone to look after his interests in town, but has now decided to make other arrangements. Walter Bruns will rent the farm, and Mr. Boeckman will have an auction sale of his personal property March 19. By moving to town and giving his personal attention to the opera house and to the installation of the bowling alleys and pool tables, Mr Boeckman feels that everything will be more satisfactory.

I married a widow who had a
