

Some damage is reported done by the train at Jessie. Snow had lodged on the track in front of the depot there, and when the train came along it threw the snow with such force against the windows that all the lights were broken.

The train went to Fergus