

The Rambler automobile which has been used by Greenland, Pritz & Co. was destroyed by fire last Monday forenoon. Theo Kittelson, who has been operating the car, was out in the country on business matters for the company, and when about five miles out he discovered the flames shooting out from under the car—and he wasn't slow about getting out. The fire started in the oil pan. Any effort to quench the flames proved useless, so Mr. Kittelson turned his attention to saving a few of the loose things on the car. An extra tire, gas tank, storage battery and one lamp was all that could be saved before it got too warm for him.