

M. D. Leininger had a dangerous experience with a hemorrhage of the nose last Saturday morning and as a consequence he is mighty weak from the loss of blood. He was just in the act of stooping over to lace his shoes when the strain burst an artery, and though he did all he could to stop the flow of blood he couldn't accomplish any good, and Dr. Truscott was called and checked it. For over two hours a steady stream flowed in which time he suffered a severe loss of blood, which left him in very weakened condition. It was an unpleasant experience and a rather close call.
