

The nice weather of the past two weeks has brought out the automobiles. F. G. Lewis was out with his new Maxwell Monday, and the other fellows were green with envy, not because his car is any better than the others—but it didn't cost him a bloomin' cent.