

W. F. Goodwall, of Sanborn, has rented the meat market from Henry Peterson, and has already taken possession. Mr. Goodwall is a firstclass butcher and aims to give his patrons the best possible service. He will conduct a strictly cash business, will pay cash for what he buys, and expects cash for what he sells. Bernard Meier, of Sanborn, will be in the employ of Mr. Goodwall, as will also Mr. Kjeltvedt, and with this efficient working force, the patrons will be given the best in their line. The Times bids the new man a hearty welcome to our city, and wishes them success.

Harvard University. At a meet