"Al Martin's Country Store" was w presented to a full house last Saturng day evening, in spite of the very disagreeable weather, and judging re 1 from the applause, and expressions n, heard afterwards, it made a decided a hit. Every member of the cast was in fine fet tle, and each part was ren-( nd dered wit hout a hitch. We believe ٤ m we will be pardoned by the others in ì nmaking expecial mention of a few of t is the leading parts. F. G. Lewis, who ł ed took the part of the storekeeper, I showed that he has excellent ability 8, along those lines. His actions and l as voice were pleasing and distinct. C a A. J. Mel gard as Harold Hawley, the d r hero, showed rare ability in his part rt and is an apt scholar in the art of n-8 love-maining, which played an imt portant part in the climax. Miss V 8, Pomeroy, as Marie Martin, showed 1remarkable talent in her various o h roles. L. P. Larson, as the minister, 1told his wonderful story with feeling e V and proved his ability as an orator. ), i His delivery was perfect, and the h sentiment. of the story which he told ŗ, was kee nly felt by his hearers. t 1, Passing o ver the serious part of the play, Joh a Norman was easily the ¥ ١. I head-liner in the comic role. His ĸ part as Si Newcomb was well received. His manner of dress and jocular expressions kept the audience in k Ċ. a ripple of laughter. The proceeds be amounted to about $27. Much of y the credit for the success of the play he should be given to Oscar Greenland, y who acted as manager, and to Dr. to Truscott, who did invaluable service to Trugeott, who did in
