

room commenced to leak. Gasoline poured from it in a stream and soon formed a pool on the floor. This became ignited and immediately the flames were threatening disaster to everything in the store. Mr. Hoff shut off the pressure while Paul Hafner ran into the new building after the fire extinguisher which he used with such good effect the flames were soon smothered. A delay of two minutes would have allowed the flames to spread to the goods in the store and everything would have been lost.—Sutton Reporter.
